

About Vireo: Vireo Growth Inc. which operates through its subsidiary, Vireo Health, is a public company, listed on the Canadian Securities Exchange (the “CSE”) and quoted on the OTCQX under the ticker symbols “VREO” and “VREOF”.

Vireo’s Medical Focus: Vireo is a physician-founded, patient-focused company that integrates best-in-class medical, scientific, and engineering practices into the development of its products and patient care practices. Vireo’s founder, Kyle Kingsley, MD, is a board-certified emergency medicine physician, serial entrepreneur, and inventor. He was inspired to launch Vireo after encountering numerous patients who successfully used cannabis to effectively alleviate their pain and suffering. Vireo’s team includes physicians, scientists, and horticulturists that have been successful in a variety of settings and who bring a broad spectrum of experience in best practices and evidence-based medicine. Vireo is driven to keep the “medical” in medical cannabis by actively participating in establishing and applying evidence-based products & services.

Vireo’s Focus on Research: High-quality research is the key for Vireo in reaching its goals as a business. The opportunity for Vireo to expand its research focus through this Research Partnership with University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine is highly attractive and represents a strong strategic fit.

Vireo’s Financial Performance & Market Capitalization: Vireo is consistently ranked at the top of the industry in the credit rankings from Viridian Capital Advisors (a premiere analyst in the cannabis industry) benefitting from very low debt leverage compared with its peers. Vireo posted third quarter 2025 revenue of $91.7M, and profitability of $25.4M. Through the nine months ended September 30, 2025, Vireo delivered $164.3M and $45.2M in Adjusted EBITDA. Vireo’s market capitalization as of February 2026 is $556.1M.

Vireo’s Operational Footprint: The Company operates cultivation, production, and dispensary facilities in ____ States. Pennsylvania is Vireo’s current focus for strategic expansion.